RAILROAD BLAMELESS FOR WRECKING AUTO AND KILLING THREE MEN

Not Responsible, Coroner Finds, for Death of Sam-

The Coroner holds that neither the meterman nor the Long Island Railroad Company is to blame for the accident. Both are exonerated from any blame or neglect. He suggests that, in view of the ever increasing travel on this road-way, the Long Island Ratiroad maintain a crossing watchman at the crossing where the fatality occurred; also at the crossing to the north of this one, known as "the Jekyi Island crossing," during all hours of the day or night while

PAYS FOR "NIGHT HORRORS." $700 for Auto Accident.

Charles A. Schleren, former Mayor of Brooklyn, must pay $700 for the "night horrors" from which Mrs. Anna M. Rittenhouse, a pretty widow of twentyeight, is suffering, according to the decision of a jury before Justice Van Sicklen in the Brooklyn Supreme Court

Mrs. Rittenhouse claimed that she was so severely injured about the head in a collision between her taxicab and a motor-car owned by the ex-Mayor, in which were the Mayor's son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Schleren, on a night of October, 1912, that she has ever since been afflicted by "night horrors," which she defines as being bad dreams, with ghastly terminations.

Unfortunately, such a rule eliminately and the pleasant to the taste, as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dysophics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin bour and appeared to pay no attention to the sign posts or signals of alarm outleded by George J. Easton, the motorman in charge of the train, that the three front care were lighted; that from the Long Beach road that crosses the railroad tracks at this point a clear and unobstructed view can be had of the headlights and the lighted cars of a passenger train proceeding to or from Long Beach in the night time.

That the warning signs at the crossing can be plainly seen at a distance by passing autolists; that no crossing watchman was on duty at the sain case of the train applied his brakes and emergency when he saw that the automobolists made no attempt to stop their car, but the monentum of the train was such that the brakes could not stop the train in time to avoid the collision.

The Coroner holds that neither the motorman nor the Long Island Ballroad the collision.
